In the 21st century economy, people can choose to live and work almost anywhere, provided they have access to a computer and a steady internet connection. Because of this, many are looking for a place to live that offers the same opportunities as rural Nebraska – in the midst of a golden opportunity, and many communities are looking at unique ways to attract young people with options to their places.

Nebraska Community Foundation is one organization that is helping communities of all sizes across the state.

What’s more, Pender Public Schools is growing and continually striving to improve the education and offerings to students.
