

BUFFETT EARLY CHILDHOOD INSTITUTE GRADUATE SCHOLARS FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

1. What are the eligibility requirements for students and faculty mentors?

Applicants must be full-time, doctoral-level graduate students who have been admitted to candidacy within a department on one of the University of Nebraska campuses. Candidacy must be achieved by December of the application year. The exception to this criterion is that your advisor will have approved your dissertation project by the start of the fellowship funding date of July 1, 2020. Your dissertation advisor should be able to address this in their letter of support. Applicants must work closely with faculty mentors who are full-time employees at one of the NU campuses.

2. Can students from any department apply?

Yes, students from any department that confers a doctoral degree can apply. We encourage applications from fields not traditionally represented in early childhood, such as public health, music, art, anthropology, etc. For instance, a fellowship was awarded in 2016-17 to a neuroscience student doing primate research. Applicants should provide clear and reasonable explanations for how their research has implications for early childhood.

3. What is early childhood?

The Buffett Institute defines “early childhood” as prenatal/birth through age 8.

4. Do I need to pass my competency exam to be eligible? Do I need to be finished with classes?

We require applicants to be admitted to candidacy within their department by December of the application year. Although we have no specific requirements regarding competency exams or coursework, students are advised to consider their departmental requirements for candidacy. In other words, if your department requires you to pass your competency exam before candidacy then we would expect this to occur before December of the application year. Applicants are required to submit their Admission to Candidacy Forms (or provide it at a later date, if applicable.)

5. What are examples of past research that has been funded?

Information about the current and past recipients of the award can be found at <https://buffettinstitute.nebraska.edu/graduate-scholars>

6. What is the mission of the Buffett Early Childhood Institute?

The mission of the Institute is to transform the lives of young children by improving their learning and development. We focus especially on children living in poverty, those growing up under conditions of high stress and familial challenge, and children with developmental delays. More information about the Institute can be found at <https://buffettinstitute.nebraska.edu/about-us>

7. If awarded, what are the requirements of the Graduate Scholars program?

Students and faculty mentors must commit to attend two events sponsored by the Buffett Institute on one of the NU campuses. Scholars present their proposed research at a reception at the beginning of the fall semester (August-September) and present their project results at a culminating seminar at the end of the spring semester (May-June). Students also participate in a midyear check-in via email with Buffett staff (December-January.) Students may be invited to additional Institute events throughout the fellowship year.

8. When are applications due?

Applications are due Tuesday, March 31, 2020, and should be submitted at BECl_Gr.pno0ni5jinkkoywub@u.box.com

9. Are letters of intent required?

No, letters of intent are not required.

10. What is the maximum grant award? How can the funds be used?

The maximum grant award is $25,000. Grants are intended to support the applicant's salary, tuition, research assistance, and direct research expenses. Salaries should be consistent with assistantship rates from the student's home departments. If students intend to receive concurrent funding from another source (i.e., another grant or assistantship), the multiple roles must be justified in the biosketch and incorporated into the budget. Indirect costs, capital costs, and computer purchases are not allowed unless specifically needed for the project and justified sufficiently.

11. Is there a specific budget template?

As specified in the RFP, the budget is limited to one page, single-spaced (a spreadsheet may be used) and the budget justification is limited to two additional pages, single-spaced. We do not require a specific budget template, but you can find a useful example here at <http://research.unl.edu/sponsoredprograms/forms-templates/>

12. Should I receive the award, when will the funds be available?

Funding can begin July 1; however, funds will not be released until IRB approval has been received.

13. How long is the application?

Applicants must limit their application to 24 pages, not including appendices. Specific page and formatting requirements can be found in the RFP.

14. How should the application be formatted?

Applications must be in Times New Roman (TNR), 12-point font, except for footnotes, which may be TNR 10-point font. All application materials must be formatted so that they are 8½ x 11 white paper with 1-inch margins all around. Applicants should include page numbers for each page within the application. The final application should be one file in pdf format. Applicants should use the naming convention: lastname.firstname.Final Proposal.pdf

The proposal should be consistent with the format and style guidelines for the latest edition of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. The research should comply with the “Ethical Standards” detailed in the Ethical Principles of Psychologists and Code of Conduct of the American Psychological Association.

15. Who is the audience for the proposal?

Applicants should assume reviewers possess general knowledge of early childhood, but are not necessarily familiar with the specific project topic. Applicants are encouraged to use language free of jargon.

16. What is the review process? Will applicants receive feedback?

Applications will be reviewed and evaluated by a panel consisting of Buffett Institute staff and faculty members from the NU system. Outside consultants may be used as needed. Feedback will be provided to applicants after final awards are announced.

17. When will applicants know if they have received the award?

Applicants will be informed by the end of June.

18. What is the role of the faculty mentor in preparing the proposal?

Applicants are encouraged to work closely with their faculty mentors in preparing their proposals. The proposal should represent the work of the student; however, faculty mentors are encouraged to review at least one draft of the proposal and provide constructive feedback.

19. Where should I direct additional questions?

Additional questions should be sent to Melissa Boyer at mboyer@nebraska.edu.
